

United, we stand strong. When we, as humans, are bonded together - fighting for the same cause, so to speak - we are empowered. Alliance with others around us gives us confidence. Reassurance. These stem from knowing that someone out there has your back. I'm sure you've all heard the phrase "strength in numbers." When we are together, as this phrase states, we have added strength. Strength is a somewhat trivial idea. The big picture here is that to be truly together, we must respect and be kind to each other. I know I wouldn't want to work with someone who was unkind or mean to me. I am not saying that to achieve, you must agree with your peers. But, you must understand their point of views when you're working towards a common goal. To be "unified," you must understand and respect each other fully and not put others down. Any kindness, no matter how small, goes a long way.

Together, we are equals. When working with others - it doesn't matter who they are - everyone is viewed as equal. Everyone has separate strengths and weaknesses, and when our strengths and weaknesses are combined, they fit like a puzzle. One person's weakness is another's greatest strength. This allows us to empower ourselves further, and go further. Unity is a feeling of invincibility. Together, we are a united group of people. We are stronger together than we are alone.
